第三部分：阅读理解（共两节，40 分）

第一节（共 15 小题；每小题 2 分，共 30 分）

阅读下列短文，从每题所给的 A、B、C、D 四个选项中，选出最佳选项，并在答题卡上将该项涂黑。

A

Reading is very important to help you learn English. To learn as much as you can from reading, you need to read different kinds of English. This book provides not only different kinds of English but also a good way to check your reading ability.

There are four parts in the book.

Part 1 is Messages: In this part somebody wants to send information to writing to somebody else. There is a test on timetables and a test on text messages.

Part 2 is People: In this part all the tests are about people. For example, there is an informal letter between friends. There is formal English in biography. There is a job application as a model to help with your writing, as well as testing your reading.

Part 3 is Places: In this part, too many different kinds of English are shown, some informal and some formal. There is the informal English of a holiday postcard. There is also the formal English in a letter of complaint.

Part 4 is Things: You will find some descriptive writing in this part. There are descriptions of clothes and of a computer.

You can do these tests in any order you like, or you can do all the tests with a formal or informal text. I enjoyed writing this book and I hope you enjoy using it.

56. We can find the introduction to a product in _____.

A. Part 1　　B. Part 2

C. Part 3　　D. Part 4

57. Which of the following is most probably written in informal English?

A. A letter of complaint.

B. A computer handbook.

C. A letter to a friend.

D. A story of a president.

58. The passage is most probably written for _____.

A. test designers　　B. students

C. test-takers　　D. teachers

59. What is the best title of the book?

A. Test Your Reading

B. Help with Your Writing

C. Learn Different Kinds of English

D. Practise English in Different Ways

B

I never thought I would have a life-changing experience at Wal-Mart.

Although my thoughts were only on speed, the checkout line I was standing in wasn't moving as quickly as I wanted, and I glanced toward the cashier. There stood a man in his seventies, wearing glasses and a nice smile. I thought, well, he's an old guy!

For the next few minutes I watched him. He greeted every customer before scanning the items. Sure, his words were the usual, "How's it going?" But he did something different----he actually listened to people. Then he would respond to what they had said and engage them in brief conversation.

I thought it was odd. I have grown accustomed to people asking me how I was doing simply out of robotic conversational habit. After a while, you don't give any thought to the question and just mumble something back. I could say, "I just found out I have six months to live," and someone would reply, "Have a great day!"

But that wasn't the end. He gave them the change, walked around the counter, and extended his right hand in an act of friendship. He looked the customers in the eyes. "I sure want to thank you for shopping here today," he told them. "You have a great day. Bye-bye." The looks on the faces of the customers were priceless. There were smiles and some sheepish grins. All had been touched by his simple gesture and in a place they never expected. They would gather their things and walk out, smiling.

Of course, he did the same to me and I got to know his name. Marty.

Who was that guy? It was as if Sam Walton had come back from the dead and invaded this old guy's body.

I had never walked away from that shop feeling like that.

60. According to the writer, when common people ask you "How's it going?", ___.

A. they don't really care what you may answer

B. they are just practicing their conversation ability

C. they are inquiring about your private information

D. they don't expect to hear any negative answers

61. What was most customers' reaction to Marty's behaviors?

A. They were in some way moved.

B. They thought it priceless.

C. They felt somewhat offended.

D. They thought it awful and odd.

62. What can we infer about Sam Walton?

A. He might be Marty's father or grandfather.

B. He might be friendly and devoted to Wal-Mart.

C. He might have died while working in the market.

D. He might have come back from the dead once before.

63. What does the writer intend to express through the text?

A. Our everyday life is always full of surprises.

B. Most customers enjoy being treated this way.

C. Being different is a good way of doing business.

D. A little positive action can make a big difference.

"Our aim is to take our art to the world and make people understand what it is to move," said David Belle, the founder of parkour(跑酷).

Do you love running? It is a good exercise, yet many people find it boring. But what if making your morning jog a creative one? Like jumping from walls and over gaps, and ground rolls? Just like the James Bond in the movie Casino Royale? Bond jumps down from a roof to a windowsill and then runs several blocks over obstacles on the way. It is just because of Bond's wonderful performances that the sport has become popular worldwide.

Yes, that's parkour, an extreme street sport aimed at moving from one point to another as quickly as possible, getting over all the obstacles in the path using only the abilities of the human body. Parkour is considered an extreme sport. As its participants dash around a city, they may jump over fences, run up walls and even move from rooftop to rooftop.

Parkour can be just as exciting and charming as it sounds, but its participants see parkour much more than that.

Overcoming all the obstacles on the course and in life is part of the philosophy(理念) behind parkour. This is the same as life. You must determine your destination, go straight, jump over all the barriers as if in parkour and never fall back from them in your life, to reach the destination successfully. A parkour lover said, "I love parkour because its philosophy has become my life, my way to do everything."

Another philosophy we've learnt from parkour is freedom. It can be done by anyone, at any time, anywhere in the world. It is a kind of expression of trust in yourself that you earn energy and confidence.

64. Parkour has become popular throughout the world because of _____.

A. its risks and tricks

B. the film, Casino Royale

C. its founder, David Belle

D. the varieties of participants

65. The underlined word "obstacles" in Paragraph 2 is closest in meaning to _____.

A. streets
B. objects
C. barriers
D. roofs

66. What can we infer from the passage?

A. Parkour is a team sport.
B. Parkour needs special training.
C. Parkour is a good but boring sport.
D. Parkour challenges human abilities.

67. Which of the following is the philosophy of parkour?

A. Sports and extremes.
B. Dreams and success.
C. Determination and freedom.
D. Excitement and popularity.

D

Pictures of polar bears struggling to stay on the ice are often used by groups that want to protect these lovely animals and their natural habitats. However, part of the solution lies with polar bears themselves.

Polar bears are highly specialized. This means that they have got used to living in specific areas and eating specific food. Polar bears live above the Arctic Circle and eat fish and arctic mammals such as seals. Their bodies are different from those of other type of bears. Polar bears have webbed feet for swimming, thicker fur and more body fat for living and swimming in cold conditions, and light-coloured fur to help them mix with the environment. As a result, polar bears do not do well when they are in non-arctic area. They cannot run as fast as other bears, they can become hot and tired easily, and they have a hard time hunting animals that are not in the snow.

Unfortunately for polar bears, climate change is reducing the size of the areas where they can live. This means that they will eventually have to leave the Arctic and travel farther south. However, as they are so specialized, it is unlikely that polar bears will be able to live as they once did.

Other creatures, such as crocodiles or cockroaches, are not nearly as specialized. They live on almost every continent and in a wide variety of climates. In fact, crocodiles are one of the most adaptable animals on the earth and have survived for millions of years. When animals specialize, they often do better than less specialized species in the same place, but if the climate or other conditions change, the specialized animals are usually the first to die off.

If polar bears are going to survive the next 100 years, they will have to adapt. Most scientists believe that polar bears may eventually cross paths with brown bears and black bears. Whether these animals fight it out or fall in love to create new generations of hybrid bears remains to be seen. No matter how it happens, they believe that polar bears will live far in the future.

68. The text mainly talks about how_____.

A. humans protect polar bears
B. polar bears hunt in the Arctic
C. specialization hurts polar bears

D. animals adapt to climate change

69. Compared with other type of bears, polar bears _____.

A. swim faster but run slower

B. are better at hunting animals

C. eat less but are much heavier

D. have bigger ears and thicker fur

70. What is most scientists' attitude towards the future of polar bears?

A. Worried. B. Optimistic. C. Shocked. D. Puzzled.

第二节（共 5 小题；每小题 2 分，共 10 分）

根据短文内容，从短文后的七个选项中选出能填入空白处的最佳选项，选项中有两项为多余选项。

As we all know, many things can be measured in terms of data. Sometimes data can indeed tell the truth. With the help of data we can easily know the price of a can of Coke in the supermarket or the result of a football match. ____71____ What is more important, data seem to be fairer than words or statements. If the data are true, we don't have to worry about being cheated. Nowadays, as lies exist in the world, data are expected to tell the truth. Therefore, many of us would rather believe data.

On the other hand, if we judge things only by data from the so -called specific research, aren't we a little too narrow-minded? Many people often treat the so -called specific data unwisely just to make sure that they are making the right decisions. ____72____For example, how can you tell that somebody isn't a good student just because he or she doesn't get high marks in the final examination?

There are many things in our life which cannot be measured by data. For example, the degree of your feeling happy in your life, the depth of love between you and your friends, and the faith you have in your country. ____73____

There is no doubt that analyzing the exact data is important to assessment of an actual event. But data should be dealt with wisely. We often get wrong data which mislead us. ____74____ Remember, data have no feeling but we humans have. Data do not mean much to people if we do not have the abilities to analyze the data with the knowledge and confidence to judge whether they are true or false. ____75____

Data are data after all. Life is much more colorful than the pale data. So give the cold data a warm heart and we'll find that the world is far more wonderful than the pale data can describe.

A. We should try our best to be wise thinkers.

B. We can only feel them in our hearts but can never express them in data.

C. But sometimes we may find that data aren't everything.

D. Data can make our life easier and more comfortable.

E. Now and then the so-called specific data puzzle us very much.

F. The exact data should come from assessment of an actual event.

G. Sometimes our hearts and mind are more sensitive than data.

Dear friends,

I’d like to offer some tips to those students who will go abroad so that you can avoid trouble and make your trip pleasant.

First of all, you should take good care of your passports and wallets, without which you could do nothing in a strange land. Second, you should never go out alone to avoid getting lost. Thirdly, it is necessary to take some clothes and medicine in case the weather changes and you might fall ill. In addition you should mind your behavior wherever you go and whatever you do because you represent the Chinese people. You should behave properly and establish a good image.

If you follow my advice, I am sure you will enjoy your trip.

第二节　情景作文（20 分）

Last week, I read a notice on donating used books to the Hope Project. I thought it was a really great idea to make my used books play a role in the education of students in poor areas, therefore, I decided to donate my used books and asked my classmates by email if they had any used books to donate. To my delight, many classmates responded to my email and they brought so many of their used books that the box was not big enough to hold all the books. The next day, my friend and I carried the books to the Hope Project Organization and gave them to a teacher working there. We smile at the teacher and were so happy when we finished the work.

W : The sea is beautiful in the morning and the water is lovely.
M : Yes, I’ ve been watching you from this rock. You’ re swimming for over an hour.
W : Yes, I need to rest now. Have you been fishing all the time? Have you caught anything yet?
M : I’ ve been sitting on the rock since breakfast, but I haven’ t caught any fish yet…Oh, don’ t smile like that. I will catch something before we go back to London.
W : You might catch a cold. Well, where are the others?
M : Over there under the trees. They’ ve been waiting for us for at least half an hour.
W : What’ s for lunch?
M : I don’ t know. Anyway, George has already ordered it.

W: Skylight Hotel, can I help you?
M: I want to reserve a room, please.
W: Certainly, sir, when would you like to stay?
M: Next Thursday night, that’ s the 15th.
W: And that’ s Wednesday night, sir, not Thursday. What type of room would you like?
M: There were two of us going, but now it’ s only me, so just a single room, please.
W: Yes, we do have a single room available on the 15th. The room rate is ninety dollars.
M: Wow, that’ s more than I expected. I thought it was 50.
W: Well, you can try calling other hotels, but you’ ll find this is pretty standard.
M: Okay. I don’ t have the time to call around and I know you’ re probably right.
W: Great. Can you tell me your name, please?
M: Hilton Horner.

听下面一段独白，回答第 13 至 15 题。 Text 9

Carole is a teenage girl. She worries that she is a bit too fat, or perhaps just too large. But she doesn’ t know how she became that way. Carole has made up her mind to follow others’ example and plans to lose weight. Sometimes she feels so unhappy without knowing why. At these times, she often goes out to restaurants, bars for food. The things she likes to eat include bread, cookies and chocolates. Although her stomach feels very full, she can’ t stop eating because of the enjoyment she gets. She is a little worried about her behavior and thinks that she might have an unknown disease. With these questions, Carole went to see a doctor. The doctor didn’ t think she was sick, but did suggest that she develop better self-control. The doctor said that Carole needed to find something that could bring some fun into her life. Another way to give up the habit of eating too much would be to do something else instead, such as talking to someone on the phone, going out with friends or drinking extra tea. This could help Carole change her habit of eating too much and become healthy again.

W: Hello, Roast Duck New World. What can I do for you?
M: Hello, I’ d like to order some dishes.
W: OK. What would you like?
M: A roast duck, a green salad, a steamed fish, two beers, and a bottle of orange juice.

W: Anything else? We have some new dishes. Do you want to try any?
M: No, thanks.
W: OK. Are you taking away or coming to our restaurant?
M: Oh, we’re going to the restaurant. Please reserve a table for us.
W: Then how many diners are there?
M: Three people in all.
W: When will you be here?
M: At about 12:15 pm. It will take us 15 minutes to walk there. Can you serve all the dishes before 12:25? We have to catch the 2:00 pm train for Hainan.
W: I’m not sure. What we can do is try our best to serve on time. Your name, please?
M: Henry.
W: Henry, right. Then telephone number?
M: 7188-3523.
W: 7188-3523. OK. See you later.
