Mother's Hands

Night after night, she came to tuck me in(掖被子), even long after my childhood years. Following her longstanding custom, she'd lean down and push my long hair out of the way, then ___36___ my forehead.

I don't remember ___37___ it first started annoying me. But it did annoy me, for they felt rough against my ___38___ skin. Finally, one night, I cried out at her, "Don't do that anymore—your hands are too ___39___!" She didn't say anything in ___40___. Lying awake long afterward, my ___41___ were always on my mind. Out of my self-pride, I didn't tell her I was ___42___. Never again did my mother close out my day with that ___43___ expression of her love.

The years have passed, and I'm not a little girl anymore. Time after time, my thoughts returned to that ___44___. By then I missed my mother's hands, missed her goodnight kiss upon my forehead. Mom is now in her mid-seventies, and those hands I ___45___ thought to be so rough are still doing things for me and my ___46___. She's been our doctor, reaching into a medicine cabinet for the cure for my children's illness. She's been our ___47___, making the best fried chicken in the world. She's been our dessert chef, dishing out ice cream at any hour of the day or night…. Through the years, my mother's hands have put in ___48___ hours of work.

Now, my own children are grown and gone. Mom no longer has Dad, and on special occasions, I would walk to next door to spend the night with her. So it was that late on Thanksgiving Eve, as I drifted into sleep in the bedroom of my youth, a familiar hand ___49___ stole across my face to brush the hair from my forehead. Then a kiss, ever so gently, touched my brow.

In my memory, for the thousandth time, I ___50___ the night my surly young voice

___51___, "Don't do that anymore—your hands are too rough!" Catching Mom's hand in hand, I burst out how sorry I was for that night. I thought she'd remember, as I did. ___52___ Mom didn't know what I was talking about. She had forgotten and ___53___ long ago.

That night, I fell asleep with a new ___54___ for my gentle mother and her caring hands. And the ___55___ I had carried around for so long was nowhere to be found.

B

We were in my office. The old dog lay in Simon's lap. "She's been with me twenty years," he said.

"You got her while you were still in the Army?"

He nodded. "One afternoon, a little boy came in with a box of pups. She jumped out. I caught her. Do you believe animals choose their owners?"

I smiled. "There's no scientific evidence for that—but I think it happens, especially with dogs."

"Right," He stroked the sleeping dog. "She saved my life."

"Saved your life, how?"

He sighed, "She was ten when I was—when I was killed, really. My tank was hit. Burned."

The dog moved slightly and moaned(呻吟). Simon stroked her shoulder with his lower arms, which were bare, clear plastic shell packed with tubes, wiring and steel rods.

"Is she in pain?" he spoke without looking up.

Every pet owner who cares for their companion worries about the ending of that precious life. "Simon, we discussed this. You're here because it's time."

"I know. I just…." He looked up, "She knew me. When a friend brought her to the rehab facility (康复机构), she knew me."

"You mean after they made you into a person like today?"

"Yes." He paused a moment, "It seemed impossible. I was all metal and plastic. But she knew it was me."

"Maybe it was your voice. She must have recognized it."

"I don't know. But without her I—I wouldn't have made it."

"I understand." Two in ten people like him could not survive beyond a month. The dog had obviously been an important reason for Simon living through that initial period of adjustment. In the years since, she must have provided an important anchor for his life. I got up and opened the door into the exam room.

"When you're ready, Simon, just call me." He nodded, but said nothing.

Even after twenty years of helping animals find an easy death, I found that day's process especially upsetting.

Simon came in slowly, carrying the dog. He handed me a small, ragged blanket. People bring blankets, pillows, small toys—things familiar to the animal. Somehow they are a comfort.

The dog awoke when he eased her down on the blanket. She glanced at Simon gently and licked his hand once, as if sensing his pain. Suddenly I realized that I was aware of Simon's grief. The dog had lived with him for two decades, man and the man with the metal and plastic.

Simon's hands were touching the dog as she went away. Most people need a few minutes alone with their departed friend. As I closed the door, Simon bent over the small dog, metal shoulders shaking. He cried, but the only tears were my own.

60. What is the best title for this passage?

A. Death of an Old Dog. B. Sorrow from Bottom of the Heart.

C. Tears of an Old Solider. D. An Unforgettable Experience of a Vet.

61. The underlined word “stroked” in the passage is the closest in meaning to _____.

A. hold tightly B. beat angrily C. touch heavily D. pat lightly

62. What can be inferred from the passage?

A. As an old soldier, Simon was brave enough to get rid of the sadness of losing the dog.

B. Without that dog’s company, Simon couldn’t have survived through the hard time.

C. The author’s tears were not only for Simon but for the whole human race.

D. As an experienced vet, the author couldn’t have sympathy for Simon’s loss.

C

People are being lured (引诱)onto Facebook with the promise of a fun, free service without realizing they’re paying for it by giving up loads of personal information. Facebook then attempts to make money by selling their data to advertisers that want to send targeted messages.

Most Facebook users don’t realize this is happening. Even if they know what the company is up to, they still have no idea what they’re paying for Facebook because people don’t really know what their personal data is worth.

The biggest problem, however, is that the company keeps changing the rules. Early on, you keep everything private. That was the great thing about Facebook. You could create own little private network. Last year, the company changed its privacy rules so that many things—your city, your photo, your friends’ names—were set, by default (默认)to be shared with everyone on the Internet.

According to Facebook’s vice-president Elliot Schrage, the company is simply making changes to improve its service. If people don’t share information, they have a “less satisfying experience”.

Some critics think this is more about Facebook looking to make more money. Original business model, which involved selling ads and putting them at the side of the pages, totally failed. Who wants to look at ads when he’s online connecting with his friends?

The privacy issue has already landed Facebook in hot water in Washington. In April, Senator(议员)Charles Schumer called on Facebook to change its privacy policy. He also urged the Federal Trade Commission to set guidelines for social-networking sites. “I think the senator rightly communicated that we had not been clear about what the new products were and how people could choose to use them or not to use them,” Schrage admits.

I suspect that whatever Facebook has done so far to invade our privacy, it’s only the beginning. That is why I’m considering closing my account. Facebook is a handy site, but I’m upset by the idea that my information is in the hands of people I don’t trust. That’s too high a price to pay.

63. What do we learn about Facebook from the first paragraph?

A. It is a website that sends messages to targeted users.

B. It makes money by putting on advertisements.

C. It profits by selling its users' personal data.

D. It provides loads of information to its users.

64. What does the author say about most Facebook users?

A. They are unwilling to give up their personal information.

B. They don't know their personal data enriches Facebook.

C. They don't identify themselves when using the website.

D. They care very much about their personal information.

65. Why does Facebook make changes to its rules according to Elliot Schrage?

A. To give better service to its users. B. To obey to the Federal guidelines.

C. To improve its users' connection. D. To expand its business to the world.

66. What attitude does the writer hold towards Facebook?

A. Neutral. B. Negative. C. Supportive. D. Anxious.

D

For many years, officials of the National Institutes of Health(NIH) have told Americans that they need to get enough sleep to stay healthy and perform well. In the past, the NIH targeted special groups, like drivers, soldiers and astronauts.

Now, health officials have begun a campaign to urge children to get enough sleep. The officials say children need at least nine hours of sleep every night. They say research shows that children who get this much sleep perform better in school, suffer fewer accidents and are less likely to become too fat.

Studies show that lack of sleep causes tiredness and problems with clear thinking. People who do not get enough sleep become angry easily and have trouble controlling their emotions.

Among children, problems that result from lack of sleep often are mistaken for more serious disorders. Unlike adults, tired children seem to have endless energy. Some doctors mistakenly identify this as hyperactivity(多动症).

Experts say many American teenagers are not getting enough sleep. Teenagers stay up later for several reasons, including schoolwork, after school activities and late-night fun. Many high school students in the United States start school very early in the morning.

Four years ago, education officials in Minneapolis, Minnesota changed the starting time of seven high schools. The officials delayed the starting time by almost ninety minutes.

A University of Minnesota study found that attendance at the high schools improved after the starting time was changed. However, the later start did not greatly affect the performance of the students. Still, school systems in other parts of the country are discussing later starting times for high school students.

Experts from the American Academy of Pediatrics, which deals with the treatment of children's diseases, have noted that many sleep disorders first develop in childhood. They say doctors often do not identify the disorder until years later.

The group has agreed to join in a study with the National Center on sleep disorders research. During the next five years, they plan to examine sleep problems in very young and older children. They also will develop guides for doctors to use when testing for sleep problems. And they will provide educational materials about the importance of healthy sleep.

67. It can be inferred from the passage that health officials _____.

A. suggest that children should not sleep too much

B. believe that children did not get enough sleep in the past

C. have been urging children to sleep more for years

D. used to think that children had enough sleep

68. Which of the following is caused by the shortage of sleep?

A. Lack of self-control. B. Hyperactivity disorder.

C. Physical disability. D. Lack of confidence.

69. Which of the following is NOT the reason for teenagers' keeping late hours?

A. Doing school assignments. B. Suffering from sleep disorder.

C. Enjoying entertainment. D. Taking up various activities.

70. Change in the schools' starting time _____.

A. has resulted in a better performance of students

B. has failed to attract more students to schools

C. may be adopted by more schools in the future

D. may cause new problems for some students

第二节（共 5 小题；每小题 2 分，共 10 分）

根据短文内容，从短文后的七个选项中选出能填入空白处的最佳选项，并在答题卡上将该项涂黑。选项中有两项为多余选项。

Filled with more information than we can hold in our heads, we're going in for the job of remembering to search engines and smart phones. Google is even reportedly working on eyeglasses that could one day recognize faces and supply details about whoever you're looking at. ___71___

This research was conducted by Betsy Sparrow, an assistant professor of psychology at Columbia University. ___72___ First, her experiments show that when we don't know the answer to a question, we now think about where we can find the nearest Web connection instead of the subject of the question itself. A second phenomenon is that when we expect to be able to find information again later on, we don't remember it as well as when we think it might become unavailable. ___73___ This method of searching information leads us to form a memory not of the fact itself but of where we'll be able to find it.

___74___ Skills like critical thinking and analysis must develop in the context(情境) of facts. We need something to think and reason about, after all. And these facts can't be Googled as we go. They need to be stored in the original hard drive, our long-term memory. Especially in the case of children, "Factual knowledge must come before skill", says Daniel Willingham, a professor of psychology at the University of Virginia—meaning that the days of drilling the multiplication table and memorizing the names of the Presidents aren't over quite yet. ___75___

You can't Google context.

A. The fact is that our machines fail us.

B. And then there is the researchers' final observation.

C. But this way of solving problems comes with a downside.

D. She has identified three new realities about how we process information in the Internet age.

E. If you're going to keep your memory on your smart phone, better make sure it's fully charged.

F. Adults, too, need to renew a supply of stored knowledge in order to situate and evaluate new information they come across.

G. But new research shows that outsourcing our memory is changing our cognitive(认知) habits.

第四部分 书面表达（共两节，35 分）

第一节（15 分）

（一）评分原则：

1.本题总分为 15 分，按 4 个档次给分。

2.评分时，先根据文章的内容和语言质量初步确定其档次，然后以该档次的要求来衡量，确定或调整档次，最后给分。

3.评分时应考虑：内容是否完整，条理是否清楚，交际是否得体，语言是否准确。

4.拼写、标点符号或书写影响内容表达时，应视其影响程度予以考虑。英、美拼写及词汇用法均可接受。

5.词数少于 50，从总分中减去 1 分。

（二）各档次的给分范围和要求：

第一档 （13 分—15 分）	完全完成了试题规定的任务。 ·内容完整，条理清楚； ·交际得体，表达时充分考虑到了交际的需求；体现了较强的语言运用能力； 完全达到了预期的写作目的。
第二档 （9 分—12 分）	基本完成了试题规定的任务。 ·内容、条理和交际等方面基本符合要求； ·所用语法和词汇满足了任务的要求；

	·语法或用词方面有一些错误，但不影响理解。 基本达到了预期的写作目的。
第三档 （4 分—8 分）	未恰当完成试题规定的任务。 ·内容不完整； ·所用词汇有限，语法或用词方面的错误影响了对所写内容的理解。 未能清楚地传达信息。
第四档 （1 分—3 分）	未完成试题规定的任务。 ·写了少量相关信息； ·语法或用词方面错误较多，严重影响了对所写内容的理解。
0 分	未传达任何信息；所写内容与要求无关。

（三）One possible version:

Dear Jim,

It's great to hear from you and I have a very favorable opinion about choice making. Yes, life is full of choices. I'd like to share my experience of a very important choice in my life.

Last year, when I was asked to decide on arts or science, I came to realize the importance of making choices. My caring parents suggested I go in for science for a promising future career. Having assessed my strengths and weaknesses, I, myself, was determined to take up arts instead since history and English were what interested me most. For the first time ever, I have followed my heart and enjoyed everything all along.

I pride myself on making the choice on my own, which is a milestone for me to think for myself and learn to be responsible for my own future.

Best wishes!

Yours,

Li Hua

A Happy Double Ninth Festival

Last weekend, my parents and I celebrated the Double Ninth Festival with my grandparents happily.

Before the big day, I planned to take my Grandparents to Xiangshang Park for a visit, while my parents booked flowers on line. On the early morning of the festival, my grandparents and I set out for the park. Considering their age, I accompanied them to the top of the mountain by cable car. Enjoying the beautiful scenery, we can't help taking lots of photos. When we came back home at noon, my parents had already prepared a big lunch for us. I served the dishes and all the family enjoyed the meal happily. To my grandparents' surprise, a courier delivered two bunches of flowers soon after we finished the meal. My parents and I, along with the courier, wished them a pleasant life.

Seeing the smiles on my grandparents' faces, I was glad and proud to have done something to show my love to them.

Text 1

W: Boy, can I help you?

M: I want to send money.

W: How much do you want to send?

M: One hundred dollars.

W: Fill in this form, please.

Text 2

W: Hello Kumar! What're you doing there?

M: I'm watching TV. Why?

W: Susee asks if you could come over here to meet our boss.

M: OK. I will be in your office in ten minutes.

Text 3

W: Hi, Henry, long time no see. Did you go back to your hometown?

M: No, I was away on business.

W: Where did you go?

M: First, I flew to New York for two meetings. Then, I flew to Atlanta to make a presentation.

Text 4

W: David, why are you late for school?

M: I came on foot. My bike was broken on the way.

W: Yesterday you also came late.

M: Yes, I came with my father in car. We were held up in traffic jam.

Text 5

W: What have you been doing these past few weeks?

M: I was thinking about changing jobs.

W: Any good news?

M: I got a reasonable raise.

W: Wonderful! A step up in the big business world!

M: Have you lived in this area since you came to the city?

W: No. We moved here four years ago and they've been the happiest years of our lives. How about you?

M: We moved here in 2009 because I had a new job. My wife and I love this neighborhood, too.

W: How time flies!

M: Yes, it seems like yesterday that we arrived here.

W: Well, I have to go now. Work is waiting for me. Have a good day.

M: You too!

Text 7

M: Susan, would you like to get together and do something on Saturday?

W: I'd love to, but I'm really going to be busy all day.

M: Why?

W: In the morning, I'll help clean the house and then meet Julie at 10:00 to help her with her science project.

M: What about after that?

W: Well, I have a dentist appointment at 2:30. I can't miss that because I've canceled twice before.

M: Okay, but are you free after that?

W: Hardly. I have to pick up my brother from soccer practice at 4:30, and after dinner I have to finish my history assignment.

M: Then, shall I come over later in the evening, and we can watch a movie.

W: Oh, but our video machine is broken.

Good morning, boys and girls! Welcome to listen to our program. First I'd like to announce a piece of good news. Well prepared by the English-lovers' Association, our English Culture Week is ready to meet you soon. The programs will be more colorful. There will be a variety of activities such as English Drama Contest, English Songs Contest and English Speech Contest. The English Culture Exhibition will give a vivid introduction to the western customs. The highlight will be the famous British music band ABC's performance of Beatles' classical songs at the closing ceremony. The Week will start on Nov. 1st and last seven days in the Student Club Center. All the competitions will be held at night, from 7: 00 p. m. to 9: 00 p. m., while the exhibition will be open from 8:00 a. m. to 9:00 p.m. for the whole week. You can find more details of the schedule on the bulletin board outside the school canteen. Now let's enjoy a song from TFBOYS.

听第 9 段材料，回答第 13 至 15 题。

Text 9

W: Good morning. Please sit down. I am Sarah, the CEO of this company.

M: Good morning Madam.

W: Your resume is very impressive. You've done well in your academics!

M: Thank you very much, Madam.

W: Bright students like you generally go to foreign universities for higher studies. Why didn't you choose that way?

M: First of all, my parents couldn't afford it. Secondly, I believe universities in China can offer quality education and it depends on the students to make the best use of it.

W: Your major subject is Computer Engineering and your minor subject is Marketing. Is there any particular reason for it?

M: I felt a technical degree along with marketing would help me move upwards in my career.

W: That's good thinking! We are looking for fresher with such an educational background.

M: Thank you very much.

W: We'll give you the result within two weeks. Best of luck!

M: Many thanks!

第三节: 听下面一段对话，完成第 16 题至 20 题，每小题仅填写一个词。听对话前，你将有 20 秒钟的时间阅读试题，听完后你将有 60 秒钟的作答时间。这段对话你将听两遍。

Text 10

W: Excuse me.

M: Yes?

W: I wonder if you could spare a few minutes to do a survey on city transport. It won't take long.

M: That's OK.

W: Lovely. Can I start by asking some information about you?

M: OK.

W: What's your name?

M: It's Harry Bancroft .

W: Can you spell Bancroft, please?

M: Yes, it's B-A-N-C-R-O-F-T.

W: Great. And can I have your address?

M: It's number 19 White Stone Road.

W: Oh, right. I know that area. It's Bradfield, isn't it?

M: That's right.

W: And could I ask what your job is? Are you a student?

M: I've actually just finished my training. I'm a barber.

W: And how did you travel to the barber's shop today?

M: I came on the bus.

W: Could you give some suggestions for the city transportation?

M: I don't think there are enough trains. That's why I don't use them—you have to wait so long.

W: Thanks. And finally I'd like to ask your opinion on cycling.

M: Well, I've thought to ride to work. But there are no safe places to leave your bikes. So I suggest building some safe parking areas for bicycles.

W: That's very helpful. Thank you very much for your time.

M: No problem. Bye!
