A Special Appointment

Years ago I moved to Woodland Hills to take a job in a small hospital's emergency department. No one wanted to work on Christmas Eve, so the shift (轮班) went to me. I kissed my family goodbye and went off to spend the night in the hospital. It was a thankless job.

At 9 pm, the ambulance brought in a man in his 60s who was having a heart attack. His face was pale, and he was frightened. The whole night I did my best to save his life. Before I left in the morning to spend Christmas with my family, I stopped by to see how he was doing. It was still tough, but he had survived the night and was sleeping.

The following year I got Christmas Eve duty again. At 9 pm sharp, the ward clerk told me there was a couple who wanted to speak with me. When I approached them, the man introduced himself as Mr. Lee and said, "You probably don't remember me, but last Christmas Eve you saved my life. Thank you for the year you gave me." He and his wife hugged me, handed me a small gift, and left.

The following year a new doctor had joined the group, but I wanted to see if Mr. and Mrs. Lee would return. This time, I volunteered for the shift. I kept an eye on the door. Once again, at exactly 9 pm, the Lees appeared, carrying a warmly wrapped bundle. It was their new grandchild. Mr. Lee, his family and I spent 13 Christmas Eves together. In the later years the staff all knew about the story and would work to give me time with him in the break room, where we spent a half-hour each Christmas Eve.

The last year I saw him, he brought me a gift. I carefully opened the package and found a crystal (水晶) bell inside. It was engraved (镌刻) with a single word: Friendship. Now, my family, friends and I ring that bell every Christmas Eve at exactly 9 pm and offer our best wishes to the man who we won't forget.

56. Working on Christmas Eve was considered "a thankless job" because _____.

A. most patients were seriously ill

B. patients refused to express thanks

C. doctors had nothing to do on that day

D. doctors couldn't get praise for the hard job

57. When the author left the hospital the next morning, Mr. Lee _____.

A. was really angry with her B. was still in a state of danger

C. got ready to leave the hospital D. recovered from his heart attack

58. According to the passage, the author formed a habit of _____.

A. celebrating Christmas Eve with her family

B. giving Christmas gifts to the hospital staff

C. spending Christmas Eve with Mr. Lee in hospital

D. ringing the bell for patients in the emergency department

59. Why does the author ring the bell on Christmas Eve?

A. To honor her working experience.　　B. To tell kids the traditional custom.

C. To show the beginning of the holiday.　　D. To remember an old friend of hers.

B

Do you know a child who has used first aid to save a life or help an injured person?

St. John Ambulance is seeking young people who have acted quickly, calmly and effectively at a real emergency for its annual Young First Aider of the Year awards.

The awards are open to all those under 18, and the closing date for nomination (提名) is April 30, 2016. The winners will be invited to attend a special ceremony in June, 2016.

"St. John Ambulance believes it is essential for young people to learn first aid so that they can help anyone who is injured," said Sandra Stocker, director of St. John Ambulance Awards Committee. "The Young First Aider of the Year is a wonderful way to celebrate their bravery and quick-thinking."

Nomination for the Young First Aider of the Year is now open. Please complete and return the nomination forms as soon as possible and certainly no later than April 30, 2016. The committee will decide which of the nominees will receive the Young First Aider of the Year awards by considering the actions of the nominees along with their ages and other factors. You should send any evidence you have with the nomination form, showing the nominees' actions.

Examples of evidence could include:

◆ Newspaper clippings (剪报) of the incident.

◆ Police incident record numbers.

Once a nomination form is received, the nominee or nominator may be approached for further details of the incident. For further information please get in touch with Sandra Stocker by email or on 020-73244082 or 020-73244083.

The Entropia Universe

The Entropia Universe is a virtual world on the Internet, which seems very like our real life. It is set in a distant future and based on a planet called Calypso. Entropia was the brainchild of a group of Swedish computer lovers who decided to see if they could create a three dimensional (维度的) virtual world that could be placed on the Internet. They did manage after they received the financial backing they needed.

The game can be played for free, but nearly all in-game activities require personal resources that you have available to use. Although there are various activities to keep you busy on Calypso, what most people do first is to find themselves a profession, such as hunting the fierce animals on Calypso, mining the precious minerals and making tools. Then they can think about buying their virtual house or paying a visit to a virtual nightclub or doing any of the other activities that make life bearable.

Entropia has its very own economy (经济) and its own currency, the PED (Project Entropia Dollars). Players move real world money into PED which they then use to pay for their life on Calypso. However, the virtual things inside Entropia do have a real value in the outside world, and careful business deals mean that players can actually make real money there. PED can be changed into dollars any time at a rate of 10PED to 1US$.

What's so impressive about The Entropia Universe is the number of players; currently more than 600,000 representing over 220 countries from planet Earth. A number of players insist that it's a good way to make money. However, the reality of Entropia's economic system is that most people end up paying more than they earn and it's not uncommon to find players who are paying up to $200 a month into their PED account. This might not be the most economical way of spending one's free time. However, some people say that for them the fact that they can escape the realities of the earthbound life and become a different person with a completely different life for a few hours every week is worth the use of money, even if they don't get any interest rates on it.

63. What can we learn about The Entropia Universe?

A. It costs nothing to join.

B. It focuses on business plans.

C. It is designed for computer lovers.

D. It presents what life is like on other planets.

64. What does Paragraph 2 mainly talk about?

A. What people do on Calypso.

B. When people buy houses there.

C. How people make life bearable.

D. Why people often find a job first.

65. According to the author, playing on The Entropia Universe _____.

A. may be very annoying B. can be quite expensive

C. is a cheap way to kill time D. is a good way to earn money

66. What can be inferred about The Entropia Universe?

A. It is technical. B. It is satisfying.

C. It is ridiculous. D. It is educational.

D

Being Authoritative (由权威的) Parents

Phrases like “tiger mom” and ‘‘helicopter parent” have made their way into everyday language. Many of us find ourselves drawn to the idea that with just a bit more parental hard work and effort, we might turn out children with bright futures. But is there anything wrong with a kind of “overparenting style”?

Parental involvement has a long history of being studied. Many of the studies, conducted by Diana Baumrind, a famous psychologist at the University of California, Berkeley, have found that a good parent is the one who is involved and reacts to her child in a positive way, who sets high expectations but gives her child independence. These “authoritative parents” appear to hit the sweet spot of parental involvement and generally raise children who do better academically, psychologically and socially than children whose parents are not strict and less involved, or controlling and more involved. Why is this parenting style so successful?

Authoritative parents actually help improve motivation in their children. Carol Dweck, a social psychologist at Stanford University, has done research that indicates why authoritative parents raise more motivated children. In a typical experiment, Dr. Dweck takes young children into a room and asks them to solve a simple puzzle. Most do so with little difficulty. But then Dr. Dweck tells some, but not all, of the kids how clever they are. As it turns out, the children who are not told they’re smart are more motivated to solve increasingly difficult puzzles. They also show higher levels of confidence and show greater progress in puzzle-solving.

As the experiment suggests, praising children’s talents and abilities seems to shake their confidence. Dealing with more difficult puzzles carries the risk of losing one’s status as “smart”. Dr. Dweck’s work strongly supports that of Dr. Baumrind, who also found that reasonably supporting a child’s independence and limiting interference (干涉) causes better academic and emotional results.

The central task of growing up is to develop a sense of self that is independent and confident. If you treat your young child who is just learning to walk as if she can't walk, you reduce her confidence. Allowing children to make mistakes is one of the greatest challenges of parenting. It is easier when they are young. The potential mistakes carry greater risks, and part of being a parent is reducing risk for our children.

67. According to the passage, a "tiger mom" _____.

A. helps her children realize their dreams

B. speaks her children's everyday language

C. places reasonable expectations on her children

D. pays close attention to her children's experiences

68. It is implied that controlling style of parenting may _____.

A. face more challenges of children

B. foster independence in children

C. cause more problems in children

D. lead to children's academic success

69. The example of the children doing the puzzles suggests that _____.

A. a good game plays a big role in training young minds

B. overpraising makes children less motivated and confident

C. puzzle-solving can give children the motivation they need

D. bright children usually show less confidence in difficult games

70. The last paragraph tells us that _____.

A. children should not be given much freedom

B. parents should not increase the risk of challenging

C. parents should allow their children to learn from mistakes

D. children should correct mistakes with the help of their parents

第二节（共 5 小题；每小题 2 分，共 10 分）

根据短文内容，从短文后的七个选项中选出能填入空白处的最佳选项。选项中有两项为多余选项。

What I Think of Boxing as a Sport

Boxing is a popular sport. Newspapers, magazines and sports programmes on TV frequently cover boxing matches. It could be the toughest of all sports to survive. It takes boxers hours in the gym and years to develop the specific characteristics needed to be a great boxer. ____71____

It seems to me that some people, especially men, find it appealing because it is an aggressive sport. When they watch a boxing match, they can identify with the winning boxer. This gives them the feeling of being a winner themselves. ____72____ They do that because the boxer comes from their own country, and if "their" boxer loses, they often feel as if they have lost a fight themselves. It is a fact that many people have feelings of aggression from time to time, but they cannot show their aggression in their everyday lives. Watching a boxing match gives them a way of expressing it.

____73____ Although boxers wear gloves during the fights, and amateur boxers even have to wear helmets, a kind of strong hard hat, there have frequently been accidents in both professional and amateur boxing, sometimes with dramatic consequences. Boxers have suffered from head injuries, and, occasionally, fighters have even been killed as a result of being knocked out in the ring. ____74____ They are usually in the form of serious brain damage, even if a boxer has never been knocked out.

To conclude, I am personally not at all in favor of aggressive sports like boxing. ____75____ We can celebrate more men and women from non-aggressive sports as our heroes in our society. I believe that the world is aggressive enough already! Of course, people like competitive sports, and so do I, but I think that hitting other people in an aggressive way is not something that should be regarded as a sport.

A. However, boxing can be a very dangerous sport.

B. Sometimes fans are rooting for a particular boxer.

C. In boxing, fighters are required to hit a moving target.

D. Many fans are drawn to the sport because they love the competition.

E. Perhaps that is the reason why successful boxers are treated as big heroes.

F. I think it would be better if less time was given to aggressive sports on TV.

G. Besides, studies have shown that there are often long-term effects of boxing.

第四部分：书面表达（共两节，35 分）

第一节（15 分）

【解答】这是一封自荐信，要求考生根据题目所列出的信息写一封自荐信，申请成为该慈善基金会的实习生。考生在进行写作的时候，先要确定好时态和人称。由于此文是自荐信，故时态必然要以第一人称为主;同时由于自荐的时候需要介绍到一些个人信息以及相关的经历经验，故在考虑时态的时候，需要用一般现在时、一般过去时或现在完

成时。除此以外，还要注意写作过程中注意使用平时学到的短语和句型，注意行文的连贯和逻辑性。

【答案】Dear Sir or Madam,I’m writing to apply for working as an intern at your charitable foundation．I’m presently a student of Senior 3．I can speak English fluently and I’m often praised for my English writing as well．Besides, I’m an active and enthusiastic person who enjoys working with different people and can adapt well to new situations．Charity is a noble cause, and I always have a strong passion for it．I believe that being an intern at your foundation will be a wonderful practice for me．I’ll be willing to send you any further information if you consider my request．Thank you for your time and consideration．I look forward to your reply．Sincerely,Li Hua

第二节 （20 分）

【解答】在写作的时候考生首先要观察四张图的内容，然后按照图片中的内容，展开对事情发展的先后顺序的联想，以便自己能够很好地抓住图片中所发生的事情和主要内容进行写作。同时，由于图片描述的是一件事，故考生还要注意的是在写作过程中所运用的时态要以一般过去时为主。除此以外，要注意写作过程中注意使用平时学到的短语和句型，注意行文的连贯和逻辑性。

【答案】Our Wonderful Little ProductionLast week we held a production-making activity in our school．On Monday afternoon, my classmates and I had a discussion and we decided to make a model airplane to take part in the activity．During the following days we made full preparations after class．First we did some design work．Every one of us put forward ideas on how to make our plane fly high and steadily．According to the design, we bought necessary materials and began to work on it．Although it was really a hard job, we all did it with great enthusiasm．Two days later, a beautiful model airplane was born．On Friday afternoon, we flew our model airplane on the playground．Many students came to watch with great interest and they all spoke highly of our work．We were really satisfied and felt proud of ourselves．What an exciting experience!

听力原文：

第一节：

W: Does the play start at 7:00 or 7:30？

M: Neither. It starts at 7:15 and ends at 8:30.

Text 2

W: Good morning. May I help you, sir?

M: Yes, could I change these pounds for dollars, please?

W: Do you want small bills or large ones?

M: It doesn’t matter.

Text 3

W: Tom worked as a secretary for three years. Then he became a newspaperman. After that he started writing novels.

M: Is he still doing that?

W: Yes, he is very famous now.

Text 4

W: Have you seen my new passport photos? I put them on the bookshelf. Oh here they are, with your coffee cups. I hope they aren't dirty.

M: Oh sorry, I was showing them to Peter. He said they made you look like the famous newsreader on TV.

Text 5

M: This wine tastes a bit strange.

W: It's made from fruit.

M: From fruit? I thought wine should be made from rice.

W: Well, this is a special wine. I made it myself.

Text 6

M: Everyone seems to be on a diet nowadays. Have you noticed that?

W: Yes, and everyone seems to talk about that, especially girls.

M: A friend of mine was on a sweet potato diet. He ate a sweet potato for breakfast, a sweet potato for lunch and another one for supper.

W: That's bad for his health. Has he lost any weight?

M: Yes, but it didn't last long. One day he felt sick and was sent to hospital.

W: I'm sorry to hear that. I think if you want to lose weight, you should not eat too much but eat all kinds of food such as vegetables and fruit. And you should do more exercise.

M: I agree with you.

Text 7

W: Excuse me. Do you think I can return these gloves?

M: What's the problem with them?

W: They are too small.

M: Didn't you try them on before you bought them?

W: Well, as a matter of fact, I received them as a gift.

M: OK, I see. I'm afraid I can't give you a cash return, but you can change them.

W: I believe you sell these gloves for $25.

M: Yes. I'll take the gloves of the same price for you to choose.

W: Oh, that pair looks nice. May I have a try?

M: It's for $29. If you like to take that pair, you'll pay some extra money.

W: OK, I will.

Text 8

M: Did you see the list of books for this course?

W: Yes, Dr. Downs said he expected us to have the first five on the list. He is going to discuss them in detail.

M: Are you going to buy them?

W: I don't know. These books are expensive. And I don't have a lot of money with me.

M: How about sharing them with me?

W: Sounds good.

M: Let's do this. I will buy three and you buy two of them.

W: I would rather do it this way: We pay fifty-fifty for the books now. And at the end of the course you can take the books you find more interesting and I will take the ones I like.

M: What if we both like the same books?

W: Come on, we are not going to argue over that. Are we?

M: I was just joking. It's definitely a better idea.

W: Then let's get the books as soon as possible.

Text 9

Hello. Welcome to Central London Hospital Radio. Before our music program at four, I'm going to repeat some of our hospital rules. Visiting hours are in the afternoon from 2:30 to 3:30 and in the evening from 7:00 to 8:00. Please remember that only two guests are allowed to see you at one time. Sorry if you feel inconvenient but the rules have been made to make sure you get the best possible care.

The following rules will fit your daily schedule during your stay here. You will wake up at 6 o'clock in the morning. Breakfast is at 7 o'clock, and lunch is at noon. There's tea at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and supper is at 5:30. We don't allow smoking in any area of the hospital. Whoever breaks the rule will be punished.

You will find the radio switch on the wall near your bed, with your headphones, if you want to listen. Lastly, from everyone in our hospital, we wish you a comfortable stay and a speedy recovery.

Text 10

M: Yes, what can I do for you?

W: My friend is in homestay, and she really enjoys it. So I'd like to join a family as well.

M: OK, let me get some details. What's your name?

W: Keiko Yuichini. Y-U-I-C-H-I-N-I.

M: And you're female. And your nationality?

W: I’m Japanese.

M: Could I see your passport, please?

W: Yes, here it is.

M: Thank you. Your passport number is KW6359134…And how old are you?

W: I’m twenty-three years old.

M: And how long are you planning on staying with homestay?

W: About five months. Well, now I live at Willow College, Room 21C. I’ve joined a course for English studies for twenty weeks.

M: OK, do you have any preference for a family with children or without children?

W: I like young children, but I’d like to be with older people, someone around my age.

M: And what about pets?

W: That’s fine. The more the better.

M: All right. Do you have special food requirements?

W: No, but I don’t eat a lot of meat. I really like seafood.

M: OK, now let me go check on the computer and see who I’ve got. I’ll give you details this afternoon.

W: Thank you for helping me.

M: It’s a pleasure, Bye.
