第三部分：阅读理解（共两节，40 分）

第一节（共 15 小题；每小题 2 分，共 30 分）

阅读下列短文，从每题所给的 A、B、C、D 四个选项中，选出最佳选项，并在答题卡上将该项涂黑。

A

One day, an old couple around the age of 70, walked into a lawyer's office.They came to file a divorce. This couple had been quarreling all their over 40 years of marriage. They hung on because of their children, afraid to affect their up-bringing. Now, all their children have already grown up. There's nothing else to worry about. All they wanted was to end their unhappy marriage, so both agreed on a divorce.

Lawyer couldn't understand why the old couple would still want a divorce after 40 years of marriage at the age of 70. After they signed the papers, the lawyer suggested a dinner together, since they were still going to be friends.

At the dining table, the first dish was roasted chicken. Immediately, the old man took the drumstick（鸡大腿）for the old lady. "Take this, it's good." But the wife was unhappy when she answered. "This is always the problem. You always think so highly of yourself. Never think about how I feel. Don't you know that I hate drumsticks?" Little did she know that the husband had been trying all ways to please her—drumsticks were the husband's favorite.

That night, both of them couldn't sleep. After hours, the old man recognised that he still loved her. He picked up the phone. But it never got through. On the other side, she was sad because he still couldn't understand her. Phone's ringing, knowing that it's him, she refused to answer. She thought that all was over and she pulled out the cord.

The next day, she received the news that he had passed away. She rushed down to his apartment,only to see his body lying on the couch still holding on the phone. He had a heart attack when he was still trying to get through her phone line.

As sad as she could be. She would have to clear his belongings. Suddenly she saw an insurance policy in the drawers, whose beneficiary（受益人）was her. Together in that file there's the note.

"To my dearest wife, by the time you are reading this, I'm sure I'm no longer around, I bought this policy for you.I hope it will be able to help me continue my promise—taking care of you. I want you to know I will always be around by your side. I love you."

56.The old couple kept their unhappy marriage for 40 years because _____.

A. they were not allowed to divorce until the age of 70

B. they were afraid of being lonely after the divorce

C. they took their children’s up-bringing into consideration

D. they didn’t have enough money to afford the fee of a lawyer

57. The writer mentioned the “drumsticks event” at dinner to _____.

A. show that the couple’s life was very poor

B. prove that it was a right decision for the divorce

C. tell the readers what was the problem of their marriage

D. criticize the old man who paid too much attention to his own

58. How did the old lady feel when she saw the scene in the old man’s apartment?

A. Anxious.　　B. Regretful.　　C. Nervous.　　D. Scared.

59. The story conveys a message that _____.

A. The old man shouldn’t take the drumstick for the old lady.

B. Lacking respect each other will lead to divorce of a couple

C. one’s words are clearer than his action when expressing love

D. understanding plays an important role even between a couple

LIVESTRONG.COM Launches New Workout Plan

Our sister site LIVESTRONG.COM has teamed up with celebrity trainer and former professional soccer player, Nicky Holender, to create Stronger™, a workout program that will burn unwanted calories during intense 30-minute workouts. After trying out Nicky’s signature workout, “Soldier,” I can personally guarantee for its effectiveness. About 30 minutes later I was wet through in sweat and 469 calories lighter.

With Stronger™, you don't need any equipment and you can burn the same amount of calories in half an hour as other workouts do in an hour. The reason you get the same results is that you maintain a very high intensity for the duration of the workout and you even stay active during the recovery exercises. "Soldier" is split into six blocks with four exercises in each block. The speed is high, but not wild, and most of the exercises are easy to pick up right away. Nicky's attitude is encouraging and motivating, and the people in the videos range in fitness level from beginner to advanced.

Stronger™ consists of 10 different workouts, so you'll be able to switch up the routines as you progress towards your fitness goal. I've never been a fan of group workouts and have never bought a workout DVD, but after seeing how effective Stronger™ is at burning calories in a short period of time I simply cannot ignore it. It's too good.

If you're interested in learning more about Stronger™, head over to Stronger.com. The program is available to stream online for a monthly payment of $14.95 and you can watch it on your computer, tablet or phone.

60. From the passage, we can learn that the Stronger™ _____.

A. is only suitable for people in advanced fitness level

B. was invented by Nicky Holender, a celebrity trainer .

C. is a workout that helps you reduce the unwanted calories

D. will have a better result together with other equipments

61. To burn unwanted calories, you need to _____.

A. head over to Stronger.com for workout equipments available

B. keep a record of losing 469 calories in Stronger™ every day

C. pay 14.95 in total to make the workout available for one year

D. devote at least a 30-minute workout as the program directing

62. The main purpose of the passage is to _____.

A. persuade people to buy the workout

B. advise people to exercise more effectively

C. descibe how a workout program performs

D. compare the advantages of different workouts

A new study suggests that people from different cultures read facial expressions differently. East Asian participants in the study focused mostly on the eyes, but those from the West scanned the whole face.

In the research carried out by a team from Glasgow University, East Asian observers found it more difficult to distinguish some facial expressions. The work published in Current Biology Journal challenges the idea facial expressions are universally understood.

In the study, East Asians were more likely than Westerners to read the expressions for "fear" as "surprise", and

"disgust" as "anger". The researchers say the confusion arises because people from different cultural groups observe different parts of the face when interpreting expressions. East Asians participants tended to focus on the eyes of the other person, while Western subjects took in the whole face, including the eyes and the mouth.

Co-author, Dr Rachael Jack, from the University of Glasgow, said: "Interestingly, although the eye region is ambiguous, subjects tended to bias their judgements towards less socially threatening emotions—surprise rather than fear, for example. "This perhaps highlights cultural differences when it comes to the social acceptability of emotions."

The team showed 13 Western Caucasians and 13 East Asians a set of standardized images representing the seven main facial expressions: happy, sad, neutral, angry, disgusted, fearful and surprised. They used eye movement trackers to monitor where the participants were looking when interpreting the expressions. A computer program given the same information from the eyes as the East Asian observers was similarly unable to distinguish between the emotions of disgust and anger, and fear and surprise. The paper states that the Eastern participants used a culturally specific decoding strategy that was inadequate to reliably distinguish the universal facial expression of fear and disgust.

It concluded that information from the eyes is often ambiguous and confusing in these expressions, with consequences for cross-cultural communication and globalisation.

The researchers also point out that this difference in sense is reflected in the differences between Eastern and Western emoticons--the typographical characters used to convey emotions in e-mails. The Eastern emoticons are not only the right way up but focus on the eyes, while in the West the mouth is important.

63. From the passage, an Eastern might interpret the reaction of a frightened Westerner into _____.

A. worry

B. astonishment

C. pleasure

D. sympathy

64.The underline word “ decoding” in paragraph 5 means _____.

A. expressing

B. understanding

C. identifying

D. transforming

65. Emoticons used in e-mails are mentioned in the passage to _____.

A. teach people how to convey their emotions in a right way

B. persuade people to use expressions to express their emotions.

C. make an introduction of a new way of communicate each other

D. show that people from different cultures use emoticons differently

66. The main purpose of the passage is to tell readers to_____.

A. distinguish facial expressions readings

B. understand facial expressions universally

C. differ Western culture from Eastern culture

D. use emoticons as useful tools when e-mailing

Vanessa Brown, a senior lecturer of art and design at Nottingham Trent University in the U.K explores the cultural and psychological relation between sunglasses and our modern idea of "cool." In an email to Science of Us, she explained what her research has uncovered about why most of us look better in shades.

Because they really do make your misshapen face look better. Put on a pair of sunglasses, and look—instant beauty as a result of balance! The dark lenses cover up any unbalanced oddities around your eyes, and research on facial attractiveness shows a clear link between balance and our sense of beauty.

Because of mystery. Many of the quick judgements we form about people come from looking them in the eyes; shade yours, and you're instantly a more attractive presence. "The eyes are such an important source of information—and weakness—for the human being," Brown explained. Eye contact helps us form judgments about someone's intelligence, confidence, and sincerity, and sunglasses keep us literally in the dark about forming those perceptions about a person. And it works both ways, because the wearer of the sunglasses feels more mysterious, too.

Because of their historical link with sharpness and attraction, we take their existence for granted today, but sunglasses are relatively modern, Brown said. Sales started to pick up in the 1920s, but they didn't become commonplace until about two decades after that. The way sunglasses were most often used prior to their commercialization helps explain some of their inside coolness, Brown said, because in their early days sunglasses were primarily used during risky water and snow sports, and were also associated with new technologies like airplane travel, which made them seem "daring and thoroughly modern."

Soon after that, Hollywood stars of the 1950s and 1960s started wearing sunglasses to defend themselves from being recognized by the public or bothered by paparazzi, whose flashbulbs would often explode violently, sometimes literally in their faces, Brown said. But regardless of practicality, movie stars' adoption of the them strengthened the link between sunglasses and romance. Also —and this is more from my own personal research than Brown's —hang-overs. They're really great for hiding hang-overs.

67. From the passage, we know Vanessa Brown_____

A. gave lectures on the attraction of sunglasses.

B. was famous for designing new-styled sunglasses.

C. studied the relation between sunglasses and attraction.

D. published a research about attraction on Science of Us.

68. According to Brown, people wear sunglasses to_____

A. look good with a pair of unbalanced oddities.

B. protect their eyes because they are weak.

C. deliver mystery to the observers and the wearers.

D. become common and popular during snow sports.

69. The writer believes that Hollywood stars prefer to wear sunglasses _____.

A. to hide their hang-overs

B. not to be recognized in the public

C. to be more attractive and romantic

D. to escape the flashbulbs of paparazzi

70. The passage mainly talks about_____.

A. the film stars who brought in the popularity of sunglasses.

B. the reason people look more attractive with sunglasses on.

C. the necessities of sunglasses when doing risky and extreme sports.

D. the reason people behave attractively with a pair of sunglasses.

第二节（共 5 小题；每小题 2 分，共 10 分）

根据短文内容，从短文后的七个选项中选出能填入空白处的最佳选项。选项中有两项为多余选项。

How to Introduce a New Product to the Market

The Snuggie launched in 2008 as a blanket with sleeves, marketing through TV commercials that struck viewers laughable. Allstar Products laughed all the way to the bank when the Snuggie turned into a lasting hit that sold millions. 71

Fulfill a Real Need. Whether your product comes from in-house ideas among the staff of an existing company or reflects demands from the consumer marketplace, it shouldn’t force a marketing approach to support a need that doesn’t exist. 72. Ask representative consumers if they would buy what you're selling, and improve your product until it fulfills a real need.

73. You can't counter competition unless you understand how your product can outdo it. Confirm your price against the market: Are you trying to signal "cheap" or "good"? Measure your feature claims against the proved reasons that your product should appeal to its consumers. Decide how to convey your advantages in a way that meets with the people who should need what you sell.

Design a Targeted Campaign. Build your marketing and advertising approach so it features what you know about your product and its market, aiming those messages at your potential consumers. To set up a specific plan, don't put off the marketing campaign until the last minute. ___74___. Besides the preparedness this approach offers, it also helps you guide aspects of your development stage to match what the market will support.

Test Your Marketing Approach. Whether you use small focus groups to gather input about your product and its planned marketing messages or roll out a large-scale test, make sure your approach connected with your consumer demands. 75___. Then correct it. Once you're confident that your marketing sends the right signals to the right people through media channels with proved abilities to reach them, you're on your way to giving your new product a successful beginning.

A.Understand the Competition

B. Violate the Competition

C. A new product needs effective approaches to gain its popularity.

D. To become the next big thing, what does a new product need?

E. You may discover that what you've planned to say creates confusion.

F. Successful companies identify and create products that people need.

G. Think of the marketing effort as part of the product-development process and start it early.

四、One possible version:

I'm writing to share the story of celebrating my mother's birthday last week. I love my mother very much, who is very kind and hardworking. As her birthday was drawing near, I was excited and determined to celebrate birthday for her.

However, I was really bothered about the birthday gift. " Whether should it be a beautiful bag, a pair of fashionable shoes, or a home-made (DIY) birthday cake?" I thought. At last, I decided to make a birthday cake for her, since it could express my love most. In order to make a cake, I needed an oven, so I bought one through the Internet immediately. Having got the oven, I couldn't wait to bake the cake according to the directions. After several times of trial and error, I eventually succeeded. On that special day, I successfully made a birthday cake and my mother was in for a surprise and praised me a lot.

With the delicious dishes and loving cake, my mother was rejoiced and all my family was enjoyed in the happy birthday. And I felt a sense of achievement.

听力理解部分录音稿

北京市房山区 2014-2015 学年度高三年级第一学期期末考试英语试题听力理解部分。该部分分为第一、第二、第三共三节。

现在是听力试音时间。

W: Aren't you going for the job interview tomorrow?

M: That's right. I have to go at 10 o'clock in the morning. I don't know how to get there, though.

W: I can take you there in my car, if you like.

M: Thanks a lot. That's a great help. I must say, I'm worried about this interview.

W: Why? You're the right person they were looking for. And I know they need engineers.

M: I know, but I haven't had much experience.

W: I don't think that matters. You're sure to get the job.

M: Well, I don't know.

W: Don't you want the job?

M: Of course I do. I really need it. And there's another thing. I don't think I'm good enough at languages.

W: But your German is really good. I was impressed by the way you talked to those people we met on holiday last year.

M: But I don't think I speak German well enough for doing business, and my French is terrible.

W: Well, I don't agree. Your language is good.

M: It's very nice of you to try to cheer me up, but I still don't think I'm going to get the job.

W: Well, we'll just have to wait and see, won't we?

W: You don't look too well. After a 12-hour flight, maybe you've got airsick.

M: Not really. Just a little tired and on top of that I think I've also got the flu, though I have no runny nose or a sore throat.

W: You should take the day off from work.

M: I couldn't do that. I have an important meeting to attend today.

W: Do you have a headache?

M: No, it’s nothing serious.

W: Why don't you call your secretary and tell her to reschedule the meeting? You should really go to see the doctor or you'll end up feeling even worse.

M: Could you feel my forehead and check to see if I have a fever?

W: You're really hot. Let me get you some medicine to bring the fever down.

M: Ok. I'll stay home this morning and rest, but in the afternoon, I'm going to the meeting.

M: Okay, Miss, can you tell me what happened?

W: Yes, I can. I was driving north on Fifteenth Street. I was waiting on the corner for the traffic light to change.

M: You were in the yellow car on the corner of Fifteenth and Lake driving north?

W: That's right. A black car was driving west on Lake Street when a white car driving south on Fifteenth went through the red light.

M: What happened next?

W: The driver of the white car ran away from the accident!

M: Are you talking about the driver who went through the red light?

W: Yes!

M: Was the driver a man or a woman?

W: A man.

M: Where did he run?

W: He ran north on Fifteenth.

M: Okay... thanks very much for your help.

M: It's a sunny day out today, isn't it?

W: It's beautiful. Enjoy it while it lasts. It's supposed to get cold tomorrow.

M: It's supposed to snow early tomorrow morning and then tomorrow afternoon there's a chance of freezing rain.

W: That doesn't sound pretty.

M: Do you have any plans for tomorrow?

W: Well, I was going to drive to Birmingham to see some friends.

M: You might want to change your plans. With the cold and wet weather we're supposed to have tomorrow, the roads are going to be rather slippery.

W: I suppose I should. I don't like driving in dangerous weather conditions. Do you have any plans for tomorrow?

M: I just have to go to class tomorrow afternoon.

W: If you're lucky, it'll get cancelled and you can have a snow day!

M: If that happens, then I'll invite you over and we can drink hot cocoa and watch movies at home.

W: That sounds like fun.

M: Hey, look outside! It's started to rain!

W: The weather in your country is even more predictable than I had previously thought.

Good morning, everyone. Welcome to the new Sea Life Centre at Plymouth.

The Sea Life Centre is a really exciting place. There are so many things to see here and everything is enjoyable. It costs ￡3.70 for grown-ups, ￡2 for children and less for over sixties and school groups. It's open from 9:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. every day except 25th and 26th of December.

Special attractions include watching animals and fish to eat at hourly feeding times and shows in the sea life theatre. There is always someone there who will answer questions about what you've seen. If you are in a group of six or more people, we can give you a special guided tour of the centre. But you need to arrange this at the information desk when you arrive.

The latest attraction is a big glass tunnel you can walk through. All around you, you will see fish swimming---sometimes even over your head. You certainly have the clearest view of the underwater world. Children love it and it's really amazing for grownups, too.

When you get hungry, there is a relaxed family dining room serving food.

Tha t's all. For more information, phone my number 01743-564219. Have a good time! Thank you.

W: Hello, ticket office. What can I do for you?

M: Hello. I need to make a plane reservation.

W: We can book your trip right now. What city are you flying to?

M: I need to fly to London.

W: One way or a round trip ticket?

M: A round trip ticket, please.

W: What date would you like me to book this plane ticket for?

M: I'll go on August 28th, and return on September 4th next Monday.

W:We offer First class and economy class Which do you prefer?

M: First class please. May I inquire about the departure time?

W: There is a 9:12 flight in the morning and a 2:00 flight in the afternoon.

M: What time will the morning flight put me there?

W: At 1:15.

M: OK. I'd like to book a ticket for this one.

W: All right, sir. That's Flight BA 38.

W: Would you please tell me your telephone number?

M: 7666781.

W: And your name, please?

M: Garfield Collins. G-A-R-F-I-E-L-D, Garfield.

W: Please reconfirm your ticket no later than 12 o'clock two days before the flight; otherwise, your reservation will automatically be cancelled.

M: Sure. Thank you.
