It was a cold day, and I had no desire to drive up the winding mountain road to my daughter Carolyn's house. But she had insisted that I come to see something at the __11__ of the mountain.

So here I was __12__ to make the two-hour journey through __13__. By the time I saw how thick it was near the top, I'd gone too far to turn back.

"I'll stay for lunch, but I'm heading back down as soon as the fog lifts," I __14__ when I arrived.

"But I need you to drive me to the garage to pick up my car," Carolyn said. "Could we at least do that?"

"How __15__?" I asked.

"About three minutes," she said. "I'll drive—I'm used to it."

After ten minutes on the mountain road, I looked at her __16__. "I thought you said three minutes."

She smiled. "This is a different route."

Turning down a narrow track, we parked the car and __17__ out. We walked along a path that was thick with old pine needles. Huge black-green pines __18__ over us. Gradually, the peace and silence of the place began to __19__ my mind.

When we stopped, I took a deep breath in __20__.

From the top of the mountain were rivers of flowers in bloom. A mix of __21__ from white to lemon to red — unfolded like a carpet before us. At the center was a waterfall of purple flowers and here and there were coral-colored ones. And western bluebirds flew __22__ the heads of the flowers happily.

A series of __23__ came to my mind. Who created such beauty? How? When?

As we approached home, we saw a sign that read: "I __24__ Answers to Your Questions."

The first answer was: "One Woman—Two Hands, Two Feet, and Very Little Brain." The second was: "One at a Time." The third: "__25__ in 1958."

As we drove home, I was so __26__ by what we had seen, I could hardly speak. "She changed the world," I __27__ said, "one flower at a time. She took her first step almost 60 years ago, probably just the beginning of an idea, but she kept at it."

"Imagine," I said, "if I'd had a(n) __28__ like her and worked at it, just a little bit every day, what might I have __29__?"

Carolyn looked at me, smiling. "Start tomorrow," she said. " __30__ yet, start today."

One day a woman was walking down the street when she saw a beggar sitting on the corner. As he sat there, passers-by walked by him giving him dirty looks. But when she saw him, the woman was willing to help him.

She stopped and looked down, asking him whether he was all right. The man slowly looked up. This was a woman clearly used to the finer things of life. She looked like that she had never missed a meal in her life. His first thought was that she wanted to make fun of him, like so many others had done before. “Leave me alone,” he said angrily.

To his surprise, the woman continued standing and smiled. “Are you hungry?” she asked.

"No," he answered. "I've just come from dining with the president. Now go away."

The woman's smile became even broader. Suddenly the man felt a gentle hand under his arm. "What are you doing, lady?" the man asked angrily. "I said to leave me alone." However, the woman insisted on getting him something to eat in the restaurant across the street. She even asked a passer-by to help grab his other arm and lift him up. Finally, Jack was taken into the restaurant. The woman explained to the manager that she would buy him something to eat.

"Not in here!" the manager replied angrily. "Having a person like that here is bad for business."

Old Jack smiled. "See, lady. I told you so. Can I leave now?"

The woman turned to the manager and smiled. "Sir, are you familiar with E&A, the banking firm down the street?"

"Of course I am," the manager answered impatiently. "They hold their weekly meetings in one of my banquet rooms."

"And do you make a good profit from that?"

"It’s none of your business."

"I am Penelope Eddy, CEO of the company."

31. When the beggar first saw the woman, he thought _____.

A. she would laugh at him

B. she would have meals with him

C. she might be fond of him

D. she wanted to give him a hand

32. The beggar mentioned his dining with the president to _____.

A. show his pride

B. prove he was full

C. refuse the woman

D. pretend to be rich

33. What did the manager probably feel after hearing what the woman said?

A. Satisfied. B. Embarrassed. C. Excited. D. Disappointed.

34. From the article we can know the woman was _____.

A. kind and honest

B. helpful and generous

C. funny and warm-hearted

D. modest and hard-working

35. According to the passage, a visitor can get a free night's stay in _____.

A. Meet Mickey and Minnie

B. Long Weekend City Escape

C. Holiday Dinner in Paradise

D. Safari Style

36. Besides great dinner, a visitor can enjoy _____ on Hawaii beach.

A. photos taken for free B. traditional local snacks

C. phone calls from Mickey D. different cultural activities

37. This passage is written to _____.

A. Disney fans B. gift givers C. foreign visitors D. animal lovers

For my grandpa Tatay's 90th birthday, our family threw him a surprise — we decorated the backyard with Philippines style and asked guests to wear traditional Filipino costume.

While I was jazzed to put on a sarong-like skirt and wrap, my white husband Darren, felt nervous in his barong, a traditional shirt for Filipino man. “I feel like this is cultural appropriation（文化挪用）,” he said, “I honestly feel uncomfortable.”

I could understand Darren. Just over this past year, a number of well-known people have gotten into hot water for wearing the dress of other cultures. They had been blamed by the media and the public. But I felt wearing a barong to Tatay’s birthday party was not appropriation. I reassured him that it was just a way to express support and a sense of unity with my Filipino family. And we were wearing these outfits as an act of kindness to Tatay. He is losing his memory, but barong is something that remains in his mind.

Still, I wasn't sure whether Darren was appropriating. I turned to an expert for advice.

Erich Matthes, a professor of philosophy, told me that there's no clear definition of cultural appropriation, “It's a really messy thing.”

“It was OK that Darren wore a barong to your family party, for he's been invited to do so. And it's an act of cultural union,” he says. “But it's not OK if you're wearing the clothing of another culture as part of a cultural exploration or education or to intentionally offend or make fun of the group. If you want to wear a qipao to a party hosted by Chinese friends, but you are not a member of this group, you should ask the most relevant representatives of the culture. Last, be aware that wearing a culture's dress comes with great responsibility.”

What the expert suggested hit a big point home for me: What we choose to wear has real power.

Seeing Darren in that barong, I knew that he was making an effort to understand and connect with my family. And that, for me, was a beautiful thing.

38. The author asked her husband to wear a barong mainly because it _____.

A. makes him look great

B. helps show family unity

C. keeps a family tradition

D. gives her family a surprise

39. The underlined phrase “have gotten into hot water” in Paragraph 3 probably means “_____”.

A. have gotten into trouble

B. have lost their tempers

C. have bathed in hot water

D. have become more popular

40. According to the article, wearing a culture’s dress probably indicates _____.

A. accepting cultural education

B. expressing cultural exploration

C. supporting cultural appropriation

D. shouldering cultural responsibility

41. Which of the following can be the best title for the passage?

A. How to Prepare a Birthday Party?

B. What to Dress in Different Cultures?

C. Wear Clothing of Another Culture?

D. Wear Traditional Shirts on Birthday?

The Arizona desert is really dry. Anyone stuck in it without water would die from dehydration（脱水）within three days. Unless, that is, they had one of Omar Yaghi's next-generation water harvesters. Although daytime humidity（湿度）is only about 10 per cent, this rises to 40 per cent at night, which means there's enough water in the atmosphere to support life — if it can be changed into liquid form.

That's exactly what Yaghi's device does. It's a box about the size of a small microwave oven designed to suck the humidity from the air at night and turn it into drinking water the next day using only the heat of the sun as its power source. What makes it work is a powder called a metal-organic framework (MOF), which at normal temperatures attracts water molecules (分子) onto its surface. Warm it up and the water is released, each harvest producing one-third of a cup of pure drinking water. "With further improvements, a device, the size of a washing machine, could produce enough water for the basic needs of a household," says Yaghi, a chemist at the University of California.

One-third of the world's population lacks safe drinking water; for them such a device could be a lifesaver. But that's not the limit of the MOF technology.

Just as MOFs can help solve the problem of water shortage, they offer a way of reducing a lot of greenhouse gases. In April this year, the carbon dioxide levels in the atmosphere hit an 800,000-year high, contributing to climate change. Recent research suggests ways that MOFs might be able to help mitigate（缓解）this danger to the Earth's ecosystem.

An international team led by chemists from the University of Manchester, UK, reported in 2018 that they had developed an aluminum (Al)-based MOF that can selectively and repeatedly remove another gaseous pollutant, nitrogen dioxide (NO2), from the surrounding atmosphere. This discovery could lead to air-related technologies that seize and change large quantities of other gases, such as carbon dioxide, to reduce air pollution.

In 2017, a MOF startup pioneer NuMat Technologies employed MOFs to safely store and deliver dangerous gases. For a given pressure, a tank containing a MOF holds more gas than one without. Or, to put it another way, if a gas tank has a MOF in it, then it does not need to be as highly pressurized in order to hold the same amount of gas, making it safer and less likely to explode, and possible less expensive.

Now, about two dozen companies in the past five years are known to be pursuing MOFs, from small startups to larger chemical and automobile companies. And QYResearch forecasts that the MOF market will grow from $70 million in 2017 to $750 million in 2025. "The potential here is just endless," says Yaghi. "As cheaper materials come into focus, there will continue to be even more opportunities for commercialization."

42. MOF changes the sucked humidity into water by _____.
A. lowering the temperature

B. collecting carbon dioxide

C. recycling dangerous gases

D. absorbing the heat of the sun

43. Aluminum-based MOF can be used to _____.
A. reduce greenhouse gases

B. produce household water

C. deliver dangerous gases

D. release water molecules

44. It can be learned that under the same pressure, a tank with a MOF will _____.

A. cost more money　　B. cause more explosions

C. hold more gases　　D. afford more crashes

45. The main purpose of this passage is to _____.

A. explain how to use MOF

B. describe the future of MOF

C. persuade people to buy MOF

D. introduce the functions of MOF

第二节（共 5 小题；每小题 2 分，共 10 分）

根据短文内容，从短文后的七个选项中选出能填入空白处的最佳选项。选项中有两项为多余选项。

What is mental health?

Mental health is an expression we use every day, so it might surprise you that the term 'mental health' is frequently misunderstood. __46__

According to the WHO, however, mental health is "a state of well-being in which every individual realizes his or her own potential, can deal with the normal stresses of life, can work fruitfully, and is able to make a contribution to her or his community." __47__

To make things a bit clearer, some experts have tried coming up with different terms to explain the difference between 'mental health' and 'mental health conditions', such as 'good mental health', 'mental well-being', and even 'happiness'. __48__

As a result, some of them have tried to explain the difference by talking about a continuous whole where mental health is at one end of the range while mental health conditions are at the other.

Research shows that high levels of mental health are associated with increased learning, creativity and productivity. __49__ In contrast, mental health conditions can cause distress and bad effect on relationships. They are also related to poor physical health and death from suicide.

__50__ The fact that someone is not experiencing a mental health condition doesn't necessarily mean his mental health is good. Likewise, it's possible to be diagnosed with a mental health condition while feeling well in many aspects of life.

Briefly, mental health is about being emotionally and socially healthy – the way we think, feel and develop relationships - and not merely the absence of a mental health condition.

A. So instead of being about 'what's the problem?', it's really about 'what's going well?'.

B. It is often mistakenly used as a substitute (替代) for mental health conditions.

C. This, however, will help prevent mental health conditions.

D. But others argue that using more words to describe the same thing just adds to the confusion.

E. They can also improve social relationships and physical health.

F. Many people are affected by depressions, anxiety and suicide.

G. But it's important to remember that mental health is complex.

45-50: BADEG

第三部分：书面表达（35 分）

第一节 （15 分）

一、评分原则：

1．本题总分为 15 分，按 4 个档次给分。

2．评分时，先根据文章的内容和语言质量初步确定其档次，然后以该档次的要求来衡量，

确定或调整档次，最后给分。

3．评分时应考虑：内容是否完整，条理是否清楚，交际是否得体，语言是否准确。

4．拼写、标点符号或书写影响内容表达时，应视其影响程度予以考虑。英、美拼写及词汇用法均可接受。

5．词数少于 50，从总分中减去 1 分。

二、要点：

1. 推荐景点；

2. 推荐理由；

3. 温馨提示。

三、各档次的给分范围和要求：

分值	评分标准说明
第一档 (13 分~15 分)	完全完成了试题规定的任务。 ·内容完整，条理清楚； ·交际得体，表达时充分考虑到了交际的需求；体现出较强的语言运用能力。 完全达到了预期的写作目的。
第二档 (9 分~12 分)	基本完成了试题规定的任务。 ·内容、条理和交际等方面基本符合要求； ·所用语法和词汇满足了任务的要求； ·语法和用词方面有一些错误，但不影响理解。 基本达到了预期的写作目的。
第三档 (4 分~8 分)	未恰当完成试题规定的任务。 ·内容不完整； ·所用词汇有限，语法或用词方面的错误影响了对所写内容的理解。 未能清楚地传达信息。
第四档 (1 分~3 分)	未完成试题规定的任务。 ·写了少量相关信息； ·语法或用词方面错误较多，严重影响了对所写内容的理解。
0 分	未能传达任何信息；写的内容与要求无关。

三、One possible version:

Dear Jim,

Nice to hear from you and welcome to Beijing for your trip!

Since your trip is focused on Chinese culture, I think The Forbidden City is an ideal destination for you. It is known for its long history dating back 600 years and its amazing buildings with royal characteristics. Besides that, you can enjoy varieties of treasures in the museum. I believe you will have a rewarding experience there.

One more thing I want to remind you is that, you are supposed to bring some thick clothes with you to keep warm since Beijing is in winter now.

If you have any other questions, do let me know.

Yours,

四、One possible version:

A Taste for Chinese Crosstalk

Last week, I, along with my classmates, had a fruitful experience in HongXing Theatre.

On Friday our teacher told us that we were going to watch a crosstalk. On hearing the news, we were so excited that we jumped up and down.

Upon arrival, we got into the theatre, queuing quietly and orderly though we couldn't wait to hear it. As we got seated, the show soon started. Watching and hearing two comics' humorous dialogues on the stage, we couldn't help bursting out laughing and giving them several rounds of applause.

After the performance, we were lucky enough to discuss the crosstalk with the comics. After knowing how to reveal the jokes and the roles they had played, some of us even put on the long gowns and tried their dialogues vividly.

On the way home, every one of us was still immersed in the atmosphere we had experienced that day because not only did we have a wonderful day, but also got a chance to experience such a fantastic Chinese traditional art form in person.

Text 8

I'm going to tell you about a sport: Capoeira. Capoeira came from Brazil and was started by the African slaves. They used it for entertainment and also to fight against their white masters. It is a kind of Kung Fu which is also like a dance. You need to be very fit and strong and you should have good control of your body. You often have to use your hands to balance. Everyone sits around in a circle, singing and playing music and two people fight in the center. To fight the other person, you kick with your feet, but nowadays, there is no contact. As soon as you see the other person's hand or foot coming towards you, you have to move away quickly. You must be careful the other person doesn't kick you. If the other person kicks you, then you lose. I have been doing Capoeira for three years. I have improved a lot since I first started and now I wear green belt. In the future, I would like to become a trainer and teach other people about this beautiful sport.

M: You look upset. Anything wrong?

W: Well, you know we've just bought a computer.

M: Yes, I know. And Jack likes it a lot.

W: Yes, he does. That's the problem. He is always working so many hours on the machine that he's not spending enough time on his school work.

M: Oh, Gosh!

W: And just now I received his teacher's phone call. She said that Jack hadn't passed his exam.

M: That's too bad! What did you say to him?

W: I told him that he shouldn't use the computer during the week. Just on the weekend.

M: Is he going to listen to you?

W: Oh, you know kids well. Whatever their parents say goes into one ear and out of the other. Do you think you could talk to him? You are his favorite uncle.

M: Well, I'll try.

Ladies and gentlemen, may I have your attention please? Welcome to the city zoo. Now I'd like to explain the three activities we have for you this afternoon. The first activity will be an elephant show starting at 2 o'clock in the elephant land in the center of the zoo. You'll certainly be excited to see the elephants' funny performances. The next activity is feeding the monkeys. It begins at 3:20 in the monkey garden in the south of the zoo. Please don't feed the monkeys with anything you may have brought with you. You can of course use the specially provided food to feed them. The last activity will begin at 5:30 in the bird area. Dr. Smith will be with you as your guide. He'll introduce you more than 30 kinds of birds from Central and South America. The bird area is in the west of the zoo. I hope you'll enjoy your time, thank you.

Ladies and gentlemen, may I have your attention please? Welcome to the city zoo. Now I'd like to explain the three activities we have for you this afternoon. The first activity will be a bear show starting at 2 o'clock in the bear land in the center of the zoo. You'll certainly be excited to see the bears' funny performances. The next activity is feeding the pandas. It begins at 3:20 in the panda garden in the north of the zoo. Please don't feed the pandas with anything you may have brought with you. You can of course use the specially provided bamboo leaves to feed them. The last activity will begin at 4:30 in the bird area. Dr. Smith will be with you as your guide. He'll introduce you more than 30 kinds of birds from Central and South America. The bird area is in the southeast of the zoo. I hope you'll enjoy your time, thank you.
